

TOOL #1

Want to create a presentation in a matter of seconds on specific company documents and meeting recordings?

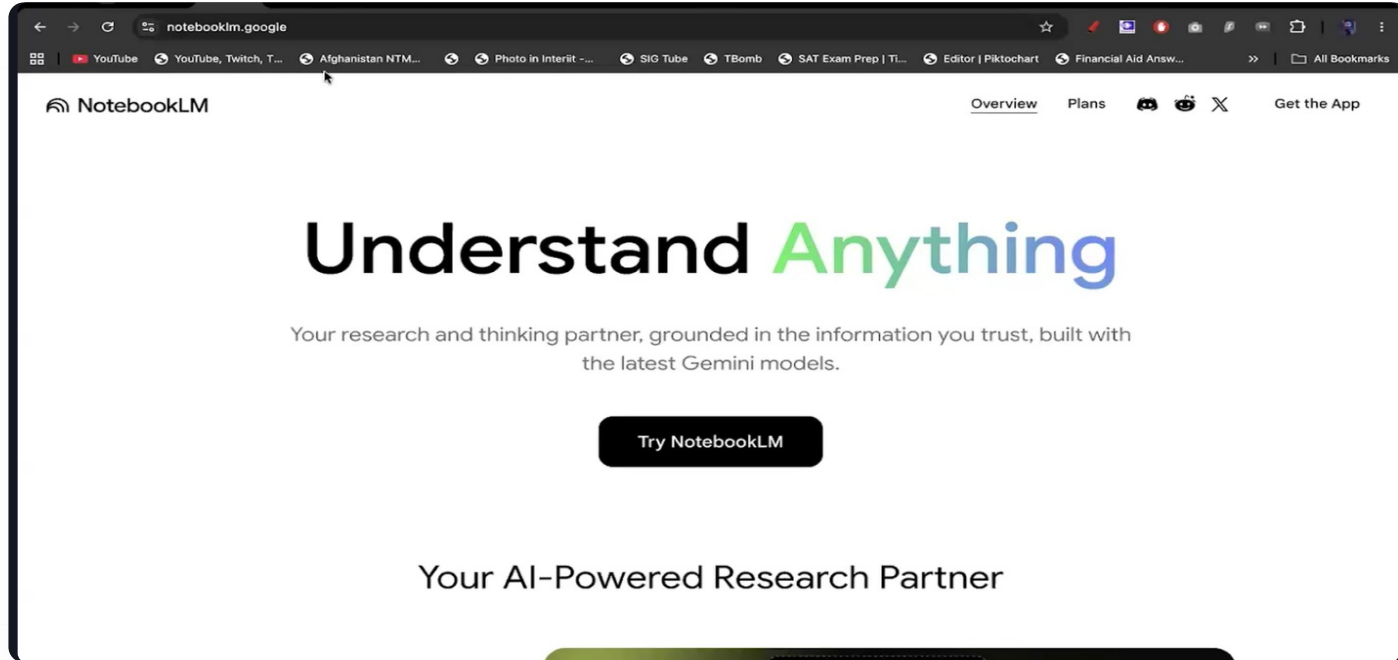

NotebookLM

APPLICATION

Summarizes any PDF, scanned document, book, link, or article at the click of a button
— and can generate presentations, infographics, and podcasts from it.

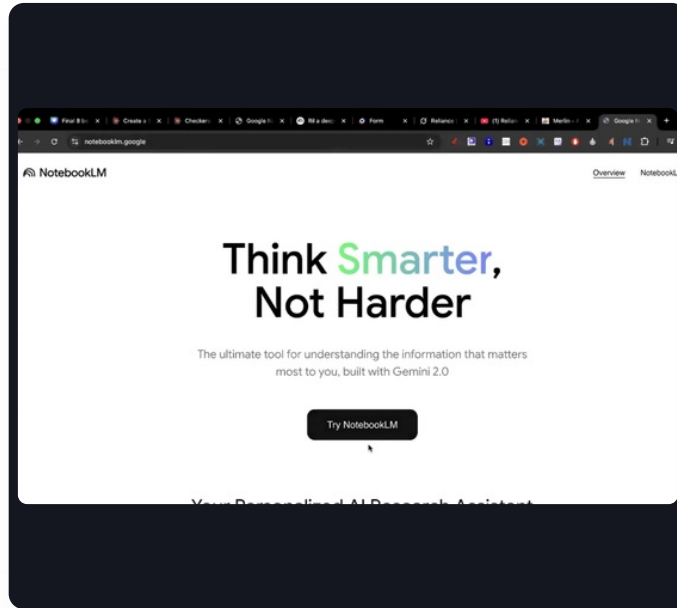

Once you go to notebooklm.google.com, just click on “Try NotebookLM”

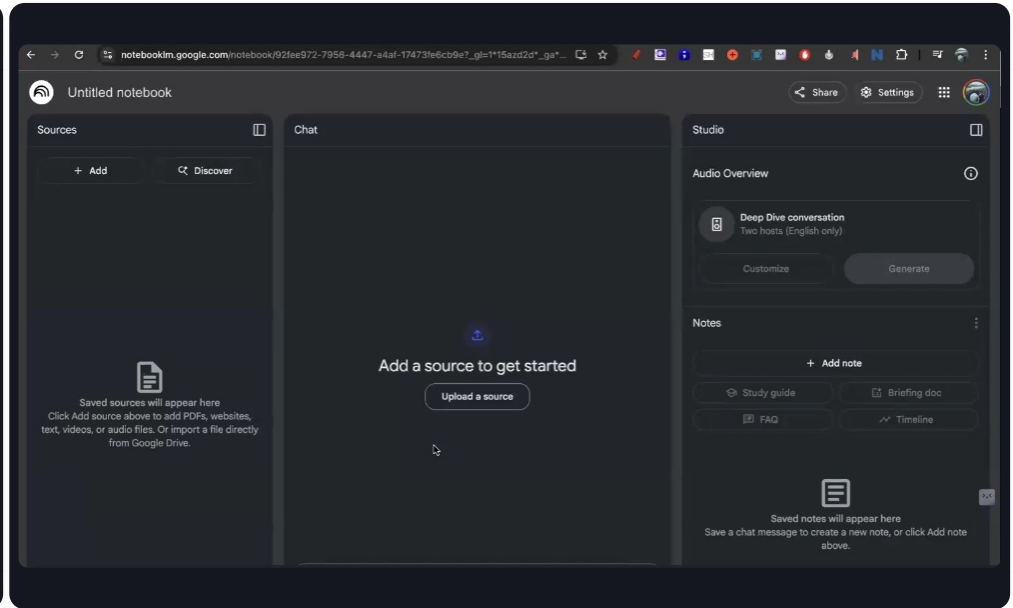

STEP 1

Go to NotebookLM — you will get an interface like this

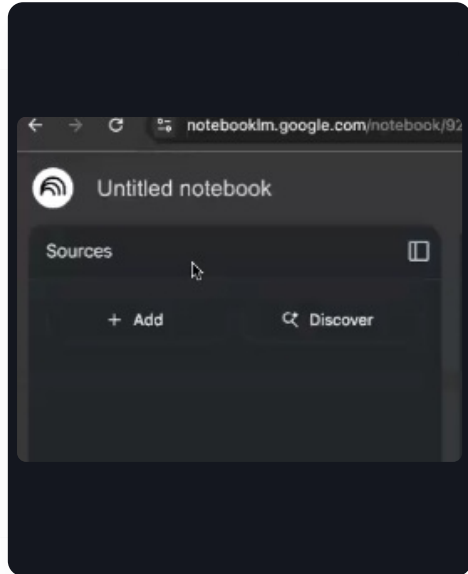

Landing page of NotebookLM

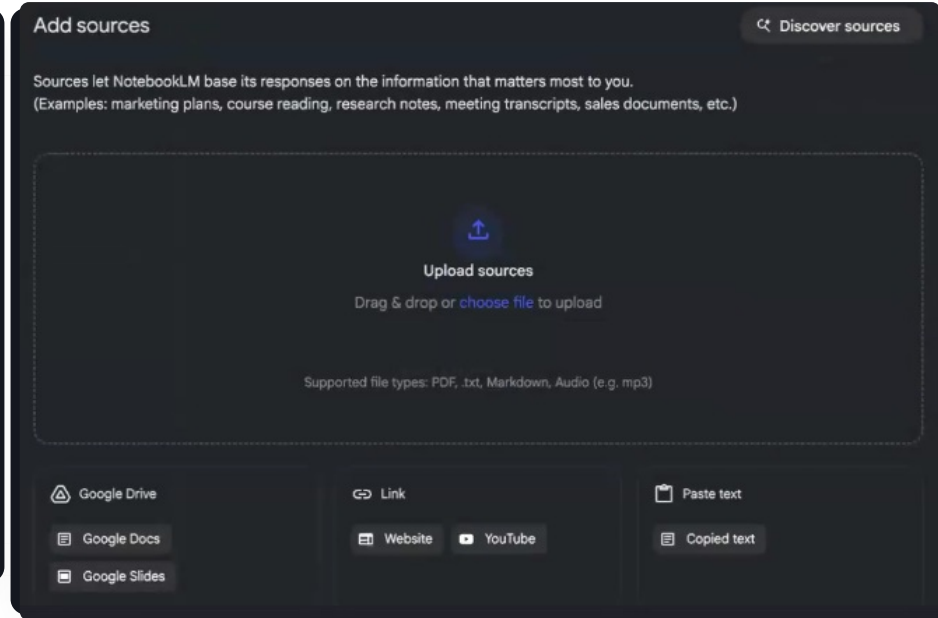

The notebook workspace: Sources, Chat, and Studio panels

Add your sources — multiple types, all in one place

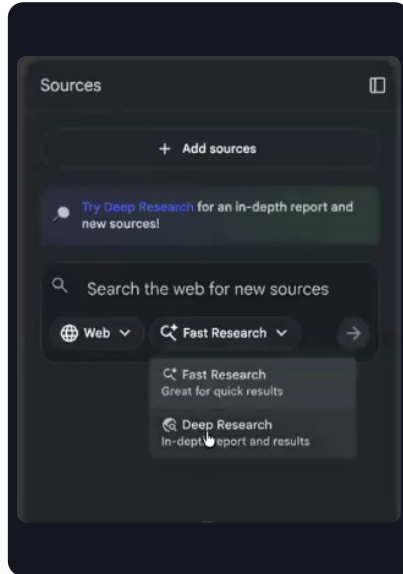

You can add your sources (multiple) from here

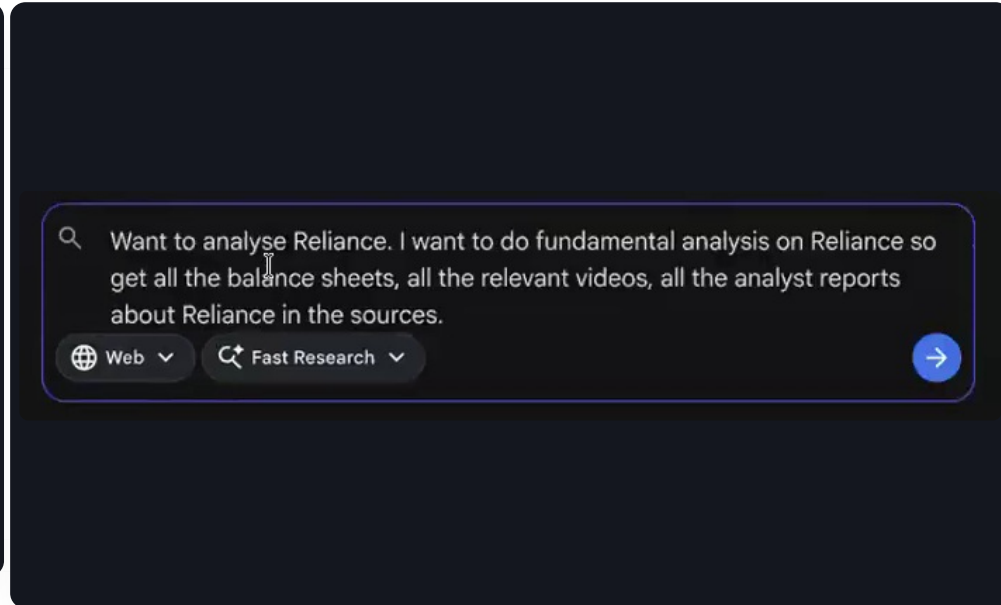

Upload documents, audio, video, YouTube links, pasted text, and more

Search the web for new sources with Deep Research

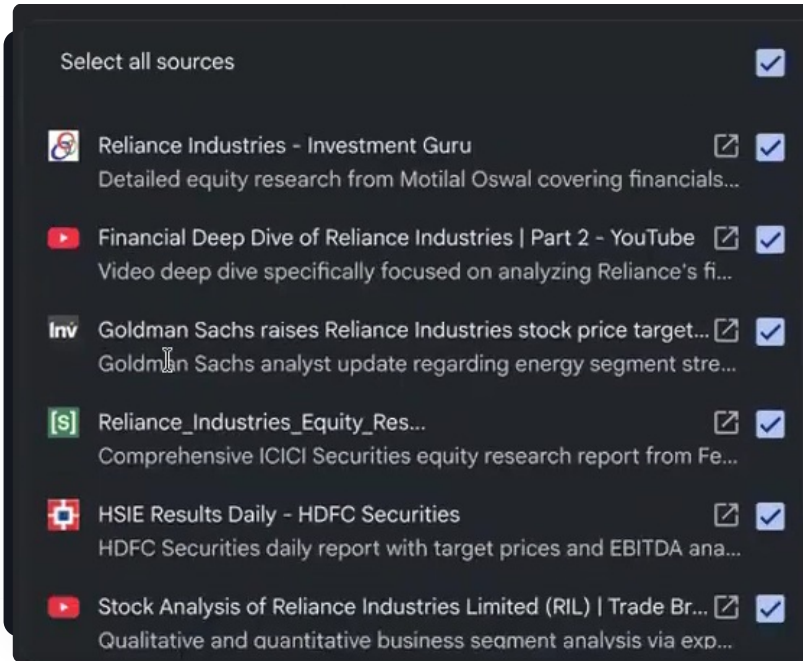

Click on “Deep Research” to search for sources

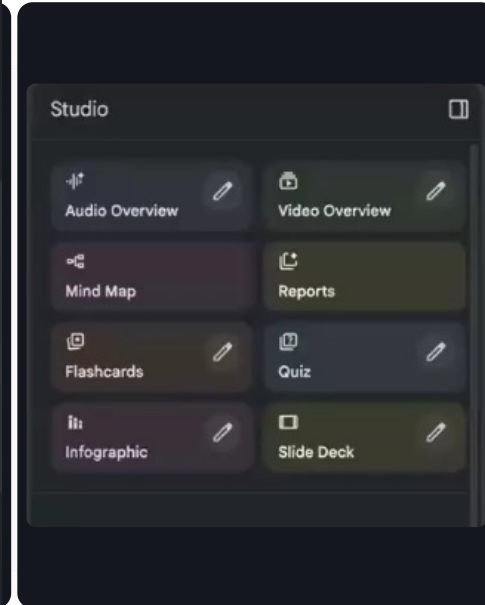

Describe what you want to search for — the system finds and displays the results

Turn any uploaded document into a podcast with “Audio Overview”

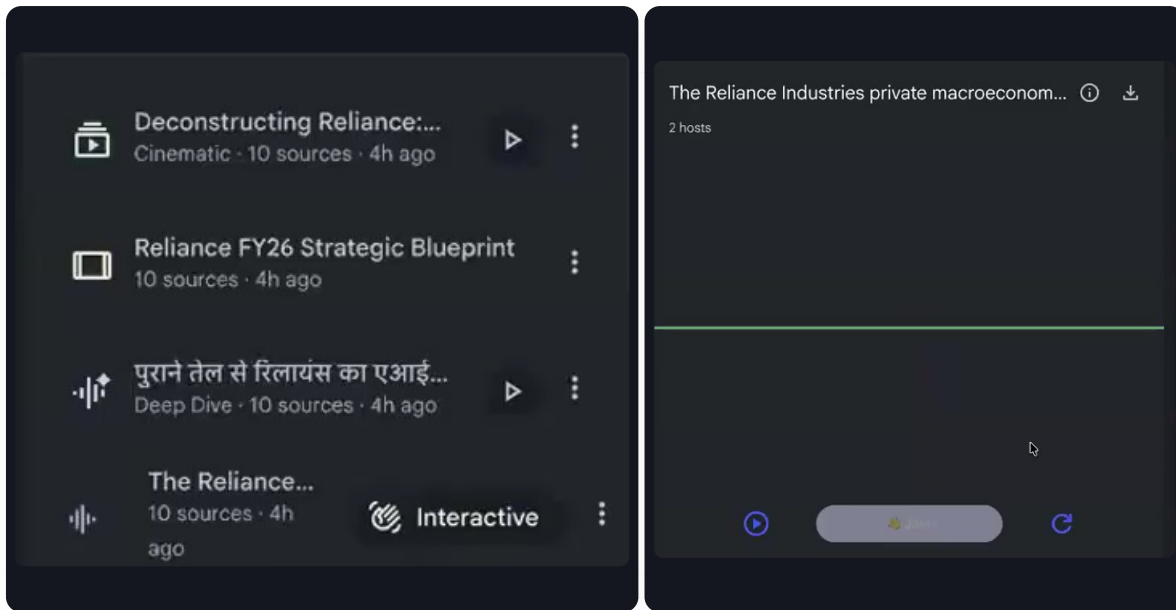

Select the sources you want included

Then click “Audio Overview” in the Studio panel

Join the podcast and ask questions directly within it

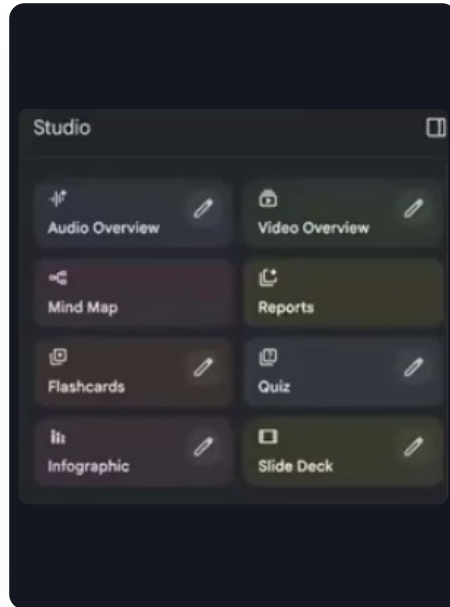

Use the “Interactive” button to jump in live

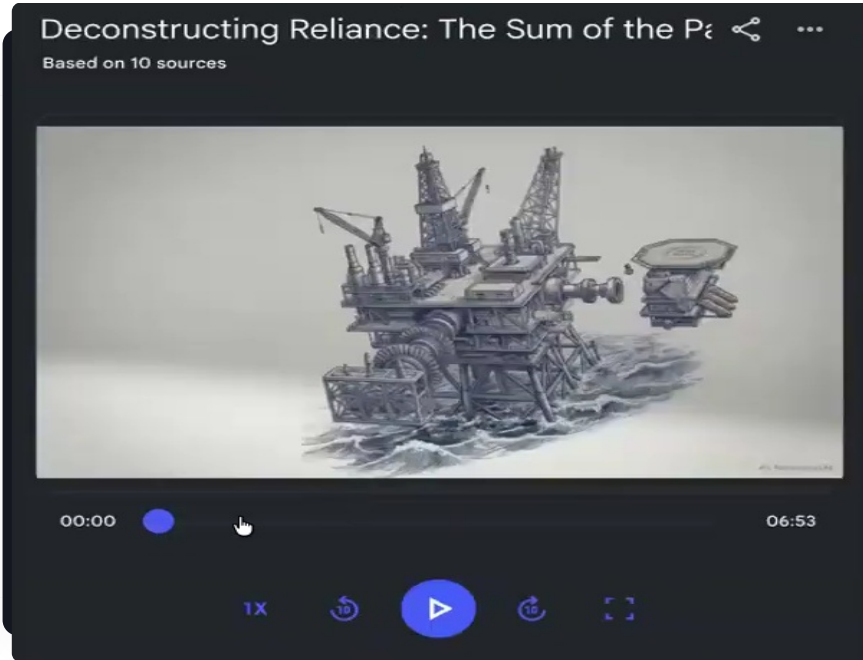

Click “Interactive” on any generated audio overview

Click “Join” to enter the podcast conversation

Click “Video Overview” to watch a video built from your source material

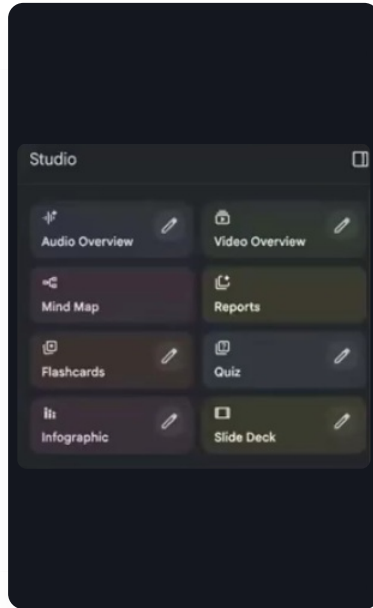

Select “Video Overview” in the Studio panel

A narrated video summary is generated automatically

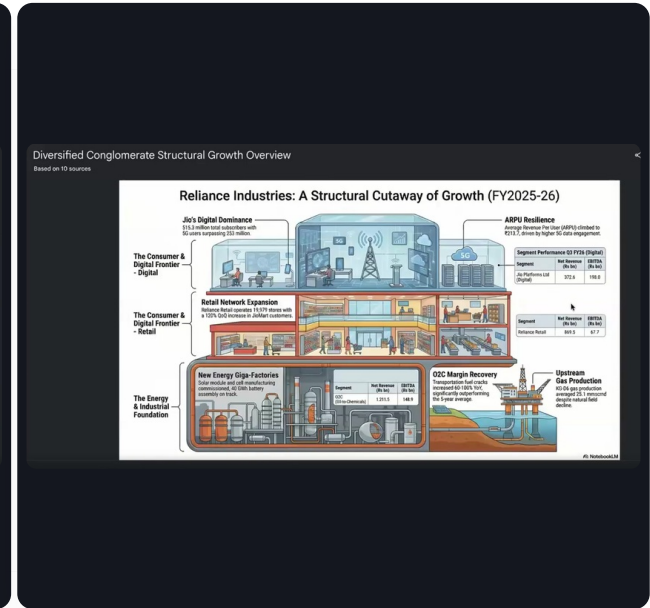

Generate mind maps and infographics from the same source material

Choose “Mind Map” or “Infographic”

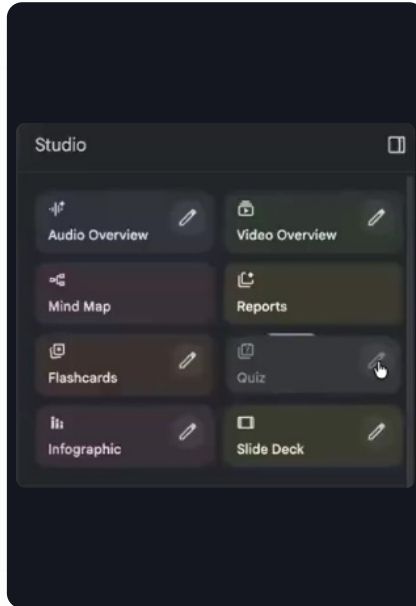

Auto-generated mind map

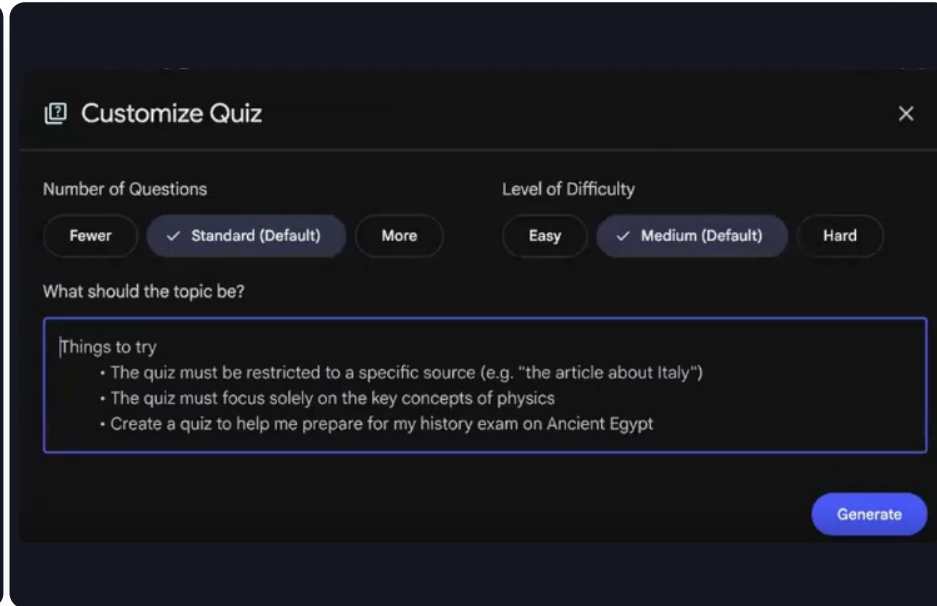

Auto-generated infographic

Create quizzes and customize the difficulty and number of questions

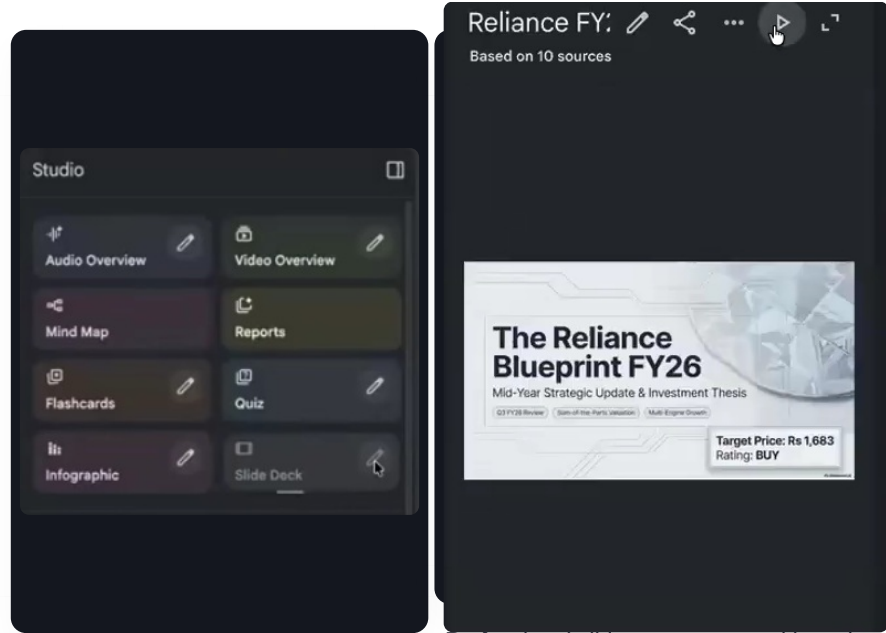

Click “Quiz” in the Studio panel

Adjust settings, then click “Generate” to build the quiz

Generate professional, editable slide decks from your source material

Slides are created ready to edit in Google Slides

1 Click "Slide Deck" in the Studio panel

Professional slides are generated in a short time
